Report from Matanzas—Inspection, fumigation, and precautionary detention of vessels—Yellow fever case from Union de Reyes.

Acting Assistant Surgeon Nuñez reports, May 13:

Week ended May 11, 1907. Eleven vessels cleared at this port for the United States and were granted bills of health. At the request of the agents of the Norwegian steamship Gotthard, bound to Galveston via Pensacola, this vessel was fumigated when about to leave the harbor on May 10. There was no sickness on board up to the time of inspection. Precautionary quarantine was observed by the Cuban authorities against the Cuban steamship Santiago, which arrived at this port May 9 from Progreso and Tampico, Mexico, and left May 11 for New York direct, with all well aboard.

No quarantinable diseases were reported during the week.
